

The Seminary Rejoices With the Church Following the Election of Pope Benedict XVI

Mission Statement

Kenrick-Glennon Seminary is a community of faith, formation, and learning, located in the Archdiocese of St. Louis, preparing men for the Roman Catholic priesthood of Jesus Christ.

Under the guidance of the Holy Spirit and to the praise of God the Father, we cultivate the human, spiritual, intellectual, and pastoral gifts of candidates for the diocesan ministry.

To this end, we commit ourselves to a responsible and effective stewardship of resources, carrying on our recognized tradition of service to the Church.

Introducing the Newly Ordained From Kenrick Seminary

By John Straatmann, Third Year, Cardinal Glennon College, Archdiocese of St. Louis

On Saturday, May 28, 2005, Archbishop Raymond Burke ordained to the Order of Priesthood Father Gerald Blessing in a joyous ceremony at the St. Louis Cathedral Basilica.

In attendance were family and friends of Father Blessing, as well as priests, deacons, and men and women religious of the Archdiocese of St. Louis. Seminarians were also in attendance at the ceremony.

Many seminarians commenting that the most moving part of the Ordination Rite was the Laying on of Hands by the Archbishop and other priests who were present. Last year, Father Tim Henderson was ordained to the priesthood. Next year, God-willing, four transitional deacons will be ordained to the priesthood. They include Deacons Christopher Dunlap, Christopher Martin, Nicholas Muenks, and Aaron Nord.

Other Kenrick-Glennon seminarian ordinations, ministries, and graduations include:

Kenrick Faculty Plays Large Part in Development of Permanent Diaconate and Paul VI

Dr. John Gresham is one of several Kenrick faculty members who go above and beyond the call of duty. Together with fellow seminary and Paul VI Institute faculty members Fr. Damien Dougherty, OFM, Fr. Gregory Lockwood, Fr. Lawrence Brennan, Fr. C. Eugene Morris, and Fr. Michael Witt, Dr.

Dr. John Gresham instructs two Paul VI students in the Seminary's Souvay Library.

Gresham instructs the Catholic laity of the Archdiocese of St. Louis for the purpose of obtaining catechetical certification and their own spiritual and intellectual edification.

"The level of training among the Kenrick faculty and what we are able to provide to the laity of the Archdiocese is a blessing for everyone involved," said Dr. Gresham.

Auction Items Needed for November 5th Convivium

On Saturday, November 5, the seminary will host its thirteenth annual dinner auction, Convivium. Convivium is the seminary's annual opportunity to feast together with our friends, new and familiar, who continue to support us with their generosity and prayers. Proceeds from this event are used to assist our seminarians in many different ways. Convivium 2004 raised over $100,000 and helped to provide new exercise equipment for the benefit of the seminarians' health and wellness needs.

The Convivium 2005 committee is currently seeking items for the auction. New items, almost new items, furniture in good condition, themed baskets, gift certificates (for restaurants, stores, events, services), handmade items, and items big and small are most welcome.

If you have questions or would like to donate an item to Convivium 2005, please call Gina Scherer in the Development Office at 314-792-6119

Thank you for your continued support!

Alumni Reflections

Kenrick-Glennon Seminary is blessed with generous alumni who donate their treasure to their Alma Mater and provide for the various needs of the seminary. The Herald asked these Kenrick alumni: “Why do you give back to Kenrick-Glennon Seminary?”

Rev. John Arthur Orr / Ordination Class of 2001, Diocese of Knoxville, Tennessee / Spiritual Director at Knoxville Catholic High School

“When I was a seminarian at Kenrick, the good people of the Archdiocese of St. Louis and others were so generous to me and my fellow seminarians. These people provided for our every need as we discerned our callings to the priesthood. The small amount I am able to give to the seminary is my way of giving back to the people who provided for me, and helping to ensure that the people of the Archdiocese of St. Louis and those dioceses throughout the Midwest have priests to serve them for years to come. For so many years I was on the receiving end of these special benefactors. My giving to the seminary is my gift to them. It’s not much, but it’s what I can give. I wouldn’t be a priest without Kenrick.”

Rev. F. Joseph Reilly / Ordination Class of 1958, Archdiocese of St. Louis / Pastor, Sts. Philip and James Parish, River aux Vases, Ste. Genevieve

“I give to the seminary because it’s the right thing to do. I received an excellent education through the St. Louis seminary system and I have a tremendous amount of gratitude for the wonderful job my professors did and for the formation I received from everyone in the seminary at that time. The seminary has a way of fostering a good spirit among its seminarians, those men who will become priests following their discernment at Kenrick-Glennon. I am grateful for that spirit that was imparted to me during my time at the seminary. It remains with me to this day.”

Ordination Photo

“I give to the seminary because it was a good place when I was there and I assume it still is today. I try to foster this same attitude among the parishioners at Sacred Heart. At the moment, our parish has two seminarians at Kenrick-Glennon, Deacon Nicholas Muenks (Theology IV) and Greg Hitschler (Sophomore, Cardinal Glennon College). Our parish is very generous to these two men, giving each of them $250 a month for their personal needs—books, an occasional meal or a movie—and both Nick and Greg are very active at Sacred Heart, sharing their discernment process with everyone in the parish. The relationship between our parishioners and their seminarians is a special bond and it’s my hope that this bond helps to support these men throughout their formation at the seminary.”

Rev. Msgr. Richard J. Lubeley / Ordination Class of 1949, Archdiocese of St. Louis / Retired, in Residence at Mary Queen of Peace Parish, Webster Groves

“I give to Kenrick-Glennon Seminary because I was asked. I recently had lunch with the President-Rector of the Seminary, Monsignor [Ted] Wojcicki, and a faculty member, Fr. [James] Ramacciotti. At this lunch, Monsignor explained to me the operating costs of the seminary and the fact that nearly all of the seminary’s revenue came from individual donors. After I was made aware of this need, I had no problem giving back to the institution that gave so much to me. The seminary is a good cause and should be thought of more often when people are looking to give to a worthy arm of the Archdiocese of St. Louis.”

Faculty News and Notes

In the December 2004 issue of "Choice: Current Reviews for Academic Libraries," Dr. John Gresham, Professor of Systematic Theology, Kenrick-Glennon Seminary /

Paul VI Institute, reviewed Internet sites for accessing the Vatican II Documents. Dr. Gresham had two more reviews published in the May issue of "Choice": World Christian Database (Internet Resource) and Christian Community in History volume one by Roger Haight. In addition to the courses Dr. Gresham taught for Kenrick-Glennon Seminary this past academic year, he also taught courses in Christology, Ecclesiology, and Johannine Literature for the St. Louis Archdiocese Permanent Diaconate program; Theological Research for the Permanent Diaconate program at Quincy University, Illinois; Catechism I: Catholic Doctrine for Paul VI Institute, and Ecclesiology for the Carmelite Sisters of the Divine Heart of Jesus.

Fr. C. Eugene Morris, Assistant Professor of Sacramental Theology, had the opportunity to provide commentary during the papal events of April 2005. On local news (NBC affiliate Channel 5) and on MSNBC, Fr. Morris offered theological background and personal reflections before, during, and after the funeral of John Paul II as well as before and after the conclave that elected Pope Benedict XVI.

Kenrick-Glennon Seminary bids a fond farewell to Fr. John F. Clark, CM, Professor of Homiletics from 1983-1987 and 1995-2005. Fr.

Clark continues to serve as the Provincial Director of the Daughters of Charity and has just recently accepted the position of Spiritual Advisor for the Midwest Region of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul in the United States.

"Congratulations to Fr. Clark for the confidence his provincial has expressed in him in giving him significant additional duties," said Msgr. Ted Wojcicki, the seminary's President-Rector. "We will miss his contribution to the mission of the seminary. Consistently I hear laudatory comments about the preaching of our newly ordained priests; such competence among these priests is due in large measure to the successful efforts of Fr. Clark over the years. We are looking for an opportunity when he might visit this fall so we can celebrate with him a Mass of Thanksgiving for his many years of faithful service. We wish him abundant blessings as he assumes his new responsibilities."

Sebastian Mahfood, Asst. Professor of Intercultural Studies, collaborated on the publication of a book chapter: Olliges, Ralph, Sebastian Mahfood, Roy Tamashiro. "Chapter 4: From Talking At You to Talking With You:

Reshaping PowerPoint for Interactive Learning." Integrating Technology in Higher Education. Ed. by M.O. Thirunaryanan and Aixa Perez-Prado. Lanham, MD: University Press of America, 2005. On May 8, Sebastian and his wife Stephanie had their son Alexander Sebas-

The Paul VI Institute was created in response to the Vatican II Council, and exists to form laity (though deacons and religious take classes as well) in the areas of faith and provide a uniform program of catechetical certification for those lay people teaching in Catholic elementary schools or Parish School of Religion programs. Dr. Gresham singles out Fr. Edward Richard, MS, with the assistance of Kenrick faculty member Fr. Donald Henke, as providing direction for the Paul VI Institute.

Kenrick faculty members also instruct those men (and their spouses) in the Permanent Diaconate program. Faculty involved in this endeavor include Dr. Gresham, Fr. Morris, Fr.

Witt, Fr. Richard, Fr. Henke, Dr. Anne Marie Kitz, Fr. John Paul Heil, Fr. James Ramacciotti, Fr. Lawrence Brennan, Dr. Susanne Harvath, and Fr. John Clark, CM. (Fr. Dougherty served as an instructor until last summer.) Former Kenrick faculty member the Very Reverend James E. Swift, CM, currently the Provincial of the Midwest Region of the Congregation of the Mission (The Vincentians), provided the vision for the Kenrick faculty's involvement with the Permanent Diaconate Program for the Archdiocese of St. Louis.

"The Diaconate Program is immensely grateful for the support of the Kenrick faculty," said Rev. Mr. Gerry Quinn, Director of Formation for the Office of the Diaconate. "The President-Rector of the seminary, Monsignor [Ted] Wojcicki, is very generous in sharing the seminary's facilities when they are needed for our training purposes."

Seminarian Spotlight

Summer can be a wonderful time to catch up on all that reading you've been meaning get to. So, for your reading pleasure and spiritual edification, the following Kenrick-Glennon seminarians have a few titles they'd like to recommend.

Anthony Podesta, Fourth Year, Cardinal Glennon College / Archdiocese of St. Louis / Home Parish: St. Joseph, Apple Creek

"One of my favorite books for spiritual reading is Story of a Soul by Saint Therese of Lisieux. This book gave me an introduction to the spiritual life, as well as fostering a devotion to now one of my favorite saints. Through a description of her struggles, Saint Therese makes herself tangible to the reader. Her 'Little Way' has taught me many lessons which have helped me in my seminary formation. I would recommend this book to anyone looking for a good beginning point in the spiritual life."

Adrian Gandhi, Theology II / Diocese of Springfield in Illinois / Home Parish: St. Agnes, Springfield, IL

"I recommend The Screwtape Letters by C.S. Lewis. This classic work is a funny and imaginative peek into the correspondence between two devils, Screwtape to his nephew Wormwood. The wiser devil corrects his apprentice tempter on how to correctly steer souls off the path of the straight and narrow while at the same time preventing influences that could bring them back into the hands of the 'enemy.' Methods of temptation change and progress like everything else and need to be constantly updated to continue to be effectively seductive. This work is an excellent illustration of how the devil thinks and operates, presenting many situations to which one can easily relate and observe in modern society, helping us call to mind influences and decisions in our own lives that lead us away from God."

Scott Hastings, Theology II / Archdiocese of Omaha, Nebraska / Home Parish: St. Wenceslaus, Omaha, NE

"The summertime is great for catching up on some of the less academic and formal spiritual writers. I am looking forward to reading Fulton Sheen's The Priest Is Not His Own, as well as rereading G.K. Chesterton's renowned The Everlasting Man. Chesterton will be a true pleasure, as he so capably articulates both what it is to be a well-reasoned Catholic in a non-Catholic world, as well as the great splendor of the Incarnation of Christ, all with his characteristic wit and nearly unparalleled grasp of the Catholic ethos. This summer will likewise be a great time to become more familiar with the writings of Benedict XVI."

Michael Houser, Pastoral Internship / Archdiocese of St. Louis / Home Parish: Ascension, Chesterfield

"The election of Cardinal Ratzinger as Pope Benedict XVI was one of the most exciting and historic events of my life as a Catholic. So I can't think of anything better to do this summer than get better acquainted with our new shepherd. I hope, among other things, to read his memoirs, Milestones, which describe Joseph Ratzinger's life from his birth in 1927 till he became Archbishop of Munich in 1977. I have always been impressed by the depth of knowledge and clarity of thought in the works of Ratzinger that I've read; and I look forward to getting more of it in his papal teachings!"

College seminarians Donald Anstoetter and Robert Ryan have been nominated to the prestigious Theodore B. Basselin Program at The Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. The Basselin Program is a full three-year scholarship awarded to seminarians who have completed two years of undergraduate study and have achieved a superior level of academic performance. The program leads to a B.A. and M.A. in philosophy. Donald, who graduated from John F. Kennedy Catholic High School, is a member of St. Joseph Parish, Manchester. Robert, who graduated from St. Louis University High School, is a member of Queen of All Saints Parish. Congratulations to both of these seminarians!

David Skillman, a seminarian for the Archdiocese of St. Louis who will be entering Kenrick School of Theology in the fall, recently completed his three years of study as a Basselin scholar at Catholic University, with a licentiate (master's degree) in philosophy. Congratulations to David, a graduate of St. John the Baptist High School and a member of Our Lady of Sorrows Parish.

On March 15, Fr. Jack Hunthausen, S.J., Director of Spiritual Formation, gave a talk on the passion of Christ (not the film) to a group in the "Bridges" program. "Bridges" is a program of presenting the Spiritual Exercises of St. Ignatius of Loyola to those who cannot make the 30-day retreat as such, but spread it over an eight- to nine-month period. Father Hunthausen repeated the presentation to another group in the program on March 16.

On March 2, Fr. Hunthausen gave a Day of Recollection to the residents of St. Joseph Apartments, located on the former Kenrick Seminary property. Since last September, Father has been celebrating Mass there for the residents several mornings each week.

On April 15-17 Fr. Paul Rothchild, Assistant to the Dean of Students, and Fr. Hunthausen will be accompanying the three Pre-Theologians on a White House retreat for a weekend of recollection.

Alexander Sebastian Mahfood is welcomed into the Catholic Church through the sacrament of Baptism on May 8, 2005.

Walk With Archbishop Burke Inspires Seminarian

By Gregory Hitschler, Second Year, Cardinal Glennon College, Archdiocese of St. Louis

It was all I could think about on the bus... what am I going to say? What is he going to ask me? What should I wear? (not really) Will he be as tired as I am? (really)

On January 24, 2005, while traveling back to St. Louis from Washington, D.C., where the seminary community had participated in the annual March for Life, some of these questions popped into my mind as I nervously anticipated my walk with Archbishop Raymond L. Burke the following day, sounding to myself like an anxious high-schooler waiting for a prom date. Archbishop Burke has made it a point to walk with each of his St. Louis seminarians in an effort to better know his future priests.

At 4:30 in the afternoon the next day, the kindly Sister who greeted me at the entrance to the Archbishop's residence and led me to the parlor immediately put me at ease. The biggest surprise when the Archbishop walked into the room about five minutes later was his dress. Never had I seen him dressed in anything "simpler" than his cassock, mozzetta, and zucchetto outside of a liturgical function. Thus, when I saw him clad in a jacket, slacks, and a cap, I was quite taken aback. However, as always, his gentleness and peaceful confidence were more than reassuring. And so, our walk began...

We immediately began speaking about the March for Life, as it was fresh in our minds—the encouraging number of youth in attendance and the beauty of the church (Holy Rosary Parish) in which the Archbishop had offered Holy Mass for St. Louis pilgrims on the morning of the march.

St. Louis seminarian Gregory Hitschler during his January walk with Archbishop Raymond L. Burke. (Marian Brickner)

The topic of our conversation then moved to our respective families. The Archbishop spoke wistfully of the days of his youth, growing up in Wisconsin on a dairy farm with his large family. I told him about my older brothers and sisters who are grown and have moved away from home and about my younger brother (whom the Archbishop had met on a retreat he had hosted for young men contemplating a call to the priesthood in mid-February at Kenrick-Glennon Seminary).

As we crossed a bridge in Forest Park, we noticed some geese strutting about on a frozen pond, and the Archbishop nonchalantly noted that such a scene is ripe for the busy camera of a fellow seminarian known to be a shutter-bug. I was both amused and amazed at this statement—amused because it was true, and amazed because the Archbishop remembered such particulars about his seminarians.

Toward the end of our walk, I asked the Archbishop about his episcopal duties. Now, as a seminarian, I thought I had a grasp on the term "busy." However, this word assumed new meaning as the Archbishop spoke of the meetings, conferences, pastoral visits, and ceremonies that are part of his schedule, and I found myself feeling ever more grateful to have such a devoted servant of this Archdiocese.

As we strolled east on Lindell Boulevard, back to the Archbishop's residence, I could not help thinking to myself: here is a man who is known and respected by fellow clergy and lay people alike throughout the nation—perhaps, the world—a man whose courage in living the Gospel and promoting a culture of life has brought his face to many newspapers and television screens—who is walking next to me, sincerely interested in my family and my life as a seminarian!

Msgr. Kevin Vann Appointed Coadjutor Bishop of the Diocese of Fort Worth

Msgr. Kevin W. Vann of the Diocese of Springfield, Illinois, has been appointed Coadjutor Bishop-designate of the Diocese of Fort Worth, Texas, by Pope Benedict XVI. The announcement was made May 17 in Washington, D.C., by Archbishop Gabriel Montalvo, apostolic nuncio to the United States.

Msgr. Vann was ordained a priest from Kenrick Seminary in 1981 and looks forward to celebrating his twenty-fifth anniversary in his new role.

"It is an honor for me to be one of the first appointments of Pope Benedict XVI, whom I very much admire."

Bishop-designate Vann will assist Bishop Joseph P. Delaney in the day to day affairs of the diocese following his ordination to the episcopate on July 13 in Arlington, Texas.

Regarding Kenrick Seminary, Msgr. Vann had this to say:

"Professors like Sister Zoe [Glenski] and the Vincentians taught me about the charism of the Daughters of Charity and St. Vincent de Paul. They taught me to see Christ in the poor. Also, my prayer life benefited tremendously from the time I spent with the Lord in seminary's beautiful chapel."

Bishop-designate Kevin W. Vann.

Coming Events at Kenrick-Glennon

Evening Prayer With the Seminarians

Kenrick-Glennon Seminary invites you to join our seminarians for Evening Prayer in the seminary's Chapel of St. Joseph. Mark your calendar now.

Alumni Day—Mark Your Calendar!

The Kenrick Alumni Mass and Dinner are scheduled for Wednesday, October 5th. The evening will begin with Holy Mass in the Chapel of St. Joseph at Kenrick-Glennon Seminary. All alumni are invited to attend. Invitations and reply cards will be mailed later in the summer.

Seminary Open House:

Meet Your Priests of Tomorrow...Today

Kenrick-Glennon Seminary will be hosting its second annual Open House on Sunday, October 16th from 1:00-4:00 P.M. There will be seminarian-guided tours, display tables featuring various aspects of seminary life, refreshments, and many opportunities to meet the future priests of the Archdiocese of St. Louis and Midwest United States.

Are You a Former Seminarian? Do You Know Someone Who Is?

Did you attend St. Louis Preparatory High School (North or South), Cardinal Glennon College, or Kenrick Seminary? Even though you were not ordained, are you grateful for their memories and benefits? If so, we would like to hear from you. Kenrick-Glennon Seminary would like to include its non-ordained former seminarians in its newsletter mailings and invite them to future Seminary events. If you know of someone who might be interested in reconnecting with the seminary, please share this information with him.

We sincerely hope you will be able to come to Kenrick-Glennon Seminary for future events. (Kenrick-Glennon Seminary is located on the old Cardinal Glennon College Campus at 5200 Glennon Drive, one block south of Weil Avenue in Shrewsbury.) Please call the seminary's Development Office (314-792-6119) or e-mail John Cleary, the Director of Development, at cleary@kenrick.edu if you are interested in receiving future issues of The Herald and further information regarding seminary events.

The seminary—be it at the high school, college, pre-theologate or theologate levels—is blessed to count you among those generous men who offered themselves to Jesus Christ and His Church toward the vocation of priesthood. Please know that you are always welcome at your seminary.
